

Proverbs and Humor or the East and West

In a global world with diverse people, this book is a delightful way to bring people of various culture together. If you want to be a winner in your business, campaign, love life or to make a conference of dozing managers to sit up, you need this book. This book compares Oriental and the Western proverbs in humorous way to let people from different cultural background understand these surviving philosophies and jokes. I wrote different versions, Japanese, Taiwanese and English. The Japanese version was published as a series in Nichibeitimes, a Japanese Newspaper in San Francisco for two years. The Taiwanese version is published as a book by Avanguard Publishing Company in Taiwan and is becoming a best seller there. I wrote the English version which has 190 sections. I was born in Taiwan 1924. I was an instructor in National Taiwan University until 1962. Later, I was invited to work as an Education Specialist in U.S. Army in Okinawa from 1962 through 1968. Afterwards, I came to the U.S. and worked as a Senior Project Engineer for several companies from 1968 through 1973. Then, I was self-employed as the president of C & S Company from 1973 through 1996.
