

Excerpts from a Family Medical Dictionary

In 1997 Rebecca Browns mother, Barbara Wildman Brown, became ill with cancer. In Excerpts from a Family Medical Dictionary the author traces, in sparse prose, the slow, gradual erosion of her mothers health, her dignity and her life. In seventeen short chapters, from anaemia, twilight sleep and metastasis, to uncton, cremation and remains, the author describes the familys journey through her mothers illness and death. Written unsentimentally, and with sometimes painful honesty, Excerpts from a Family Medical Dictionary is an extraordinarily moving commemoration of a life and death.
