

You Can Make Big Money Writing (Making Money Enjoyable Book 4)

Jack Alexander has been writing for payment as a full-time freelance writer for all of his working life, and that's now measured in decades, not years. He has written novels, information books, business documents ranging from web headlines to extensive company formation manuals, over 1,500 magazine articles, press releases and associated PR materials, and scripted speeches for politicians and other public speakers. He agrees very strongly with the policy that writers should be paid well for what they write. This book is written for both those writers starting out, who can be helped by guidance through all the hoops of professional writing, and for those who have started in the field. It includes detailed sections on: 1. Can you be a writer? 2. What you need to get started 3. The different types of writing 4. Choosing your field of specialization 5. Locating the best prospects in your field 6. How to slant, and why you should 7. Your Rights and wrongs 8. The records you need 9. Supplementary sales and other income points 10. Reference & Resource Materials. Neither pompous nor text-bookish, this book lets the reader/user get started immediately on his or her writing, whether that's a first or second career. Besides four published novels, in several fiction categories, the author has researched and written several how-to-do-it books.
