

John and Sebastian Cabot: Biographical Notice With Documents (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from John and Sebastian Cabot: Biographical Notice With Documents The original edition of this work in Italian is published at the charge of the Royal Commission of National History of Venice. This translation is authorized by that Commission as well as by the Author. A comparison of the translation with the original publication will show that they vary in some places. In every instance of the sort, the variance has been suggested or authorized by Professor Tarducci, and will be conformed to in the next Italian edition. The Authors letter of Dedication shows how he was led to write this story of the Cabots; and points out the propriety of such work after the publication of his Life of Christopher Columbus, and the seasonableness of the work as his contribution to the Festivals now celebrating in honor of the great Genoese and the discovery of America. Next in time, as in importance, to the discovery of the Bahamas and West Indies by Columbus, was the discovery of the northern part of America by the Cabots. I may be pardoned for adding that the latter discovery must be regarded by the historian as infinitely more beneficial to mankind than the former. These two discoveries, the first by a Genoese, the second by Venetians, transferred the control of the worlds commerce from Genoa and Venice to the Iberian peninsula and the British Isles.
