

Beyond Schoolmarms and Madams: Montana Womens Stories

Sheriff Garfield had just been elected to a second term in 1920 when he was fatally shot. His wife Ruth, a ranching woman with a young son, set aside her grief to serve out her husbands term. She was Montanas first female sheriff and served two years. Stories like Ruth Garfields fill the pages of Beyond Schoolmarms and Madams: Montana Womens Stories. The women featured in this book range from late eighteenth-century Indian women warriors to twenty-first century Blackfeet banker Elouise Cobell. They span geography?from the western Montana women who worked for the Forest Service, to Miles City doctor Sadie Lindeberg. And they span ideology?from the members of the Montana Federation of Colored Womens Clubs, who led the fight for laws banning segregation in public accommodations, to the Women of the Ku Klux Klan. With grit and foresight, these women shaped Montana.
