

My Kind of Town: Excerpts of a Coppers Life

My Kind of Town chronicles the real life experiences of a Chicago cop during the early 1960s. Anthony Sabatello's brief career with the Chicago Police Department was spent in the Patrol Division and in the Traffic Division, which enables him to provide different perspectives on being a copper in the Windy City. Some of the events he describes are interesting, some are entertaining (what ordinary citizens might call bizarre), but none depict violence and all are true accounts. Beware, there is some strong language.
