

When Paul metaphorically came out of the closet

If your first thought, when you read the title, was homosexuality, you must try to think again. The short story is actually a metaphor for people who want to create a new start, but are afraid they can't. The author's personal story and age is the example of that, and of a life that is more adaptable and happy than we initially expect or make it out to be. The author wants to convey a message of hope and active involvement in our lives. It is all about common dreams that can be true. And although the dreams are especially dedicated to writers, everyone is invited.
