

Echoes of Vaudeville

Rubber-faced, 90 year old comedian, Jasper Cook, re-lives some of the most humorous events in his life as an entertainer. His embarrassing moments, and the outrageous practical jokes he has suffered through, are positively hilarious. His buffoonery and confrontation with an irate red hen is absolutely hysterical. The book also includes more than twenty skits and routines performed many years ago by Jasper and his group of entertainers. His comedy is noted for its family oriented, clean material. From singing a solo in Church while the pianist played the wrong music, to having a stage collapse with him, Jasper Cooks stories in this book are guaranteed to make the reader laugh.
