

The Gag Family: German-Bohemian Artists in America

Rich in visual records, paintings, drawings, and photographs. Explore the Gag family's remarkable cultural journey from Bohemia to the American Midwest to New York and beyond. After settling in the Minnesota frontier town of New Ulm in 1879, German-Bohemian immigrant Anton Gag made his way as an artist and begat a family business. His daughter Wanda made her reputation in New York as a printmaker and children's book author and illustrator. Her younger sister Flavia was a prolific writer, illustrator, and painter.
